

Intersections of Perspectives in Communication Scholarship

The Inaugural Purdue Graduate Student Conference on Communication Research

Call For Papers

The PGSCCR is now accepting submissions for its inaugural conference on March 27, 2009 at Purdue University.

The conference committee is generally interested in papers of or about communication research but is particularly interested in research related to the theme: Intersections of Perspectives in Communication Scholarship. Our theme highlights research that challenges, bridges, and entwines methodological paradigms that have been historically separated. We encourage submissions that explore the intersections between areas of study, research using mixed methodologies, and innovative collaborations. In the spirit of debate and inclusion, papers which defend more traditional methodological perspectives are also welcome.

The deadline for submissions is January 22, 2010. The PGSCCCR is accepting both paper and panel proposals. Please refer to our website for submission guidelines and the submission coversheet.

Topics of Interest

- Inter-, Trans-, and Multi-disciplinarity
- Connections and Tensions between the Perspectives of Methodology and Praxis
- Historical or Critical Analyses of Academic Areas and Disciplinary Orientation,
- The Use of Mixed Methodologies and their Theoretical Implications from Perspectives such as Qualitative, Quantitative, Rhetorical, Critical, Historical, Narrative, Archival.

Check out
<http://isours.org/cgsa/conference> for submission
guidelines

For more information or to volunteer as a reviewer or respondent, please contact:

Abigail King
(abigail@purdue.edu) or

Vicky Ortiz
(aortiz@purdue.edu)

The PGSCCR is an initiative of:

{CGSA} @ PURDUE
Communication Graduate Student Association

